PARLIAMENTARY INTELLIGENCE. HOUSE OF COMMONS.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 25.
 This day the House was to have ballotted for a Committee to try the merits of the Colchester Election under Mr Grenville's act; but the Speaker having waited until half past three o'clock, the House was of course adjourned until to-morrow.

THURSDAY, Feb. 26.
 AT half after three there were ninety-nine members present. The Speaker waited near ten minutes, and was upon the point of adjourning, when Mr Montagu came in, and completed the number of one hundred.

COLCHESTER ELECTION.
 The order of the day was read, and the ballot for a Committee to try the merits of the said election continued until five o'clock.

The following are the Members of the Committee:
 RICHARD ALDORTH NEVILLE, Esq; Chairman.
 Robert Wood, Esq; Matthew Montagu, Esq;
 John Langdon, Esq; Alexander Brodie, Esq;
 Sir Charles Kent, Bart. John Smith, Esq;
 Sir James Langham, Bart. Sir James Langham, Bart.
 Philip Metcalfe, Esq; Sir Cecil Bishop, Bart.
 Burnett Abercrombie, Esq; John Calvert jun. Esq;
 NOMINEES.
 Sir William Young, Bart. for Mr Jackson.
 Charles Grey, Esq; for Mr Tierney.

The Committee sit to-morrow morning, with the usual powers, &c.
 Several petitions, reports, and private bills were brought up by Lord George Cavendish, Mr Pye, and others, which were received and read.

WESTMINSTER PETITION.
 Mr Addington moved, that the order for the Westminster petition be read. After it was read, the Hon. Member moved, that it be discharged.

Mr Bouverie said, that it was rather extraordinary a motion of that nature, should be made without any reason assigned.

Mr Addington answered, that the pressure of other public affairs, together with the absence of the Gentlemen of the Long Robe, who were upon the circuits, had induced the parties to accommodate each other, and they had accordingly agreed to an adjournment of the petition. He moved, that the said order be adjourned to Friday the 3d of April next. Ordered.

ADJOURNMENT.
 Mr Pitt rose, and the House was in the most profound attention, expecting some information relative to the King.

Mr Pitt said, "As there is no public business now before the House, and as there will be a pressure of business next week, I shall beg leave to move the House, at its rising, do adjourn to Monday next."

Before the Speaker put the question, he looked towards the Opposition Bench, and Mr Fox was expected to rise. After a pause of a few seconds, the Speaker put the question of adjournment.

Ordered.
 The House waited a quarter of an hour to swear in the Colchester Committee, which being done at the table, the House adjourned to Monday next.

L O N D O N, —February 27.
 As the strongest possible proof of his Majesty's complete recovery, and that it is considered so by his physicians, we vouch for the fact, that on Saturday night last the King and Queen slept together, and on Sunday his Majesty was at Chapel.

A few days ago, a six months plan of Government was laid before his Majesty, but to which he has not yet given a definitive answer. It consists in making the Prince and Queen joint Regents, assisted with a Council. The present Ministry to remain.

Stuart's Star.
 The confirmed sanity of his Majesty will be attended with many blessed effects; the great, however, of which will be, restoring the Constitution to its pristine sanity. It has been so convulsed, since the King's illness, by the ambitious views of party, that nothing but his immediate renovation of health, or a most lamentable event, could restore it to its former enervated equilibrium. The King, in sending for the Duke of Gloucester, wished only to have his brother's opinion respecting the late Parliamentary conduct of himself and the two other Royal Dukes. His Majesty has a great reliance on the integrity of the Duke of Gloucester. And it is said, that his Highness vindicated the behavior of all, by supporting the cause of the Heir Apparent, in such manner as was highly satisfactory to his Majesty. In the mean time, let us exult at the real recovery of the best of Kings, and if Mr Pitt has egregiously erred in his conduct to the Prince, let us hope that it proceeded from the best, though the most mistaken motives. Ibid.

The King did not walk out on Wednesday or account of the badness of the weather. His Majesty received some visits, and afterwards spent the remainder of the day with the Queen and Princesses.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and Duke of York Wednesday morning again visited his Majesty at Kew, and were with him near two hours. At two they returned to town.

Yesterday morning, his Royal Highness the Duke of York went to Kew Palace, where his Highness had a long interview with the King, and at noon came to Carlton-house.

Yesterday morning their Royal Highnesses the Prince of Wales and Duke of York were to have walked with the King in Kew Gardens, but were prevented by the bad weather.

The King is no longer under any constraint from Dr Willis or his assistants. His Majesty's restoration is so complete, that he now lives in his accustomed domestic way.

A message was received yesterday morning at the Lord Chancellor's from Kew, commanding his attendance on his Majesty, with others of the Cabinet Ministers.

A Cabinet Council was held at Kew yesterday, but not a syllable transpired.

This morning his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury set off from his palace at Lambeth, for Kew, to visit the King.

Wednesday morning Lord Sydney went to Kew in consequence of a message from the King, and was introduced to his Majesty.

We have it from respectable authority, that it is although he is perfectly well in respect to mind, it would be by no means advisable for him to enter immediately into business. The sea air, not bathing, is therefore talked of, and East Bourn is said to be the place of retirement.

In all the late interviews which his Majesty had with the Queen, they converse together in German, a language, which he was early very fond of, and which from constant practice he is master of.

The Marquis del Campo, the Spanish Ambassador, is the only member of the corps diplomatique that has yet seen the King since his illness. The rest of the Foreign Ministers will be introduced in turn very shortly. The Marquis has been in the habits of the most familiar intimacy with their Majesties and the Royal Family, and has frequently made one of the family parties at Windsor-Lodge and Kew.

Wednesday, the Marquis of Stafford, Lord Viscount Weymouth, Lord Sydney, and Sir Joseph Banks, had conferences with the King at Kew Palace.

Same day, Lord Viscount Stormont, Sir Thomas Dundas, and Mr Fox, had an interview with his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, at Carlton-house.

The manly conduct and tranquil behaviour of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, during the late incapacity of the Sovereign, and the transactions relative to the Regency, must endear him to every Englishman, however they may differ in politics; his respectful and affectionate manners to his father, and his consideration for the Parliament and the people, are prefaces of the most favourable kind to this nation, and to its interests in the scale of European politics.

Wednesday night the Duke of Leinster and the Earl of Charlemont arrived in town, also Mr T. Connolly, Mr J. O'Neil, Mr B. Ponsonby, and Mr Stuart, as deputed by both Houses of Parliament in Ireland, to present an Address to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, praying that he might accept the Regency of that kingdom, without restrictions, during the indisposition of his Royal Father.

Last night several nobility and gentry, among whom were the Irish Peers and Commons, were entertained by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales at Carlton-house.

The Commissioners, who have come over from Ireland will undoubtedly present the addresses from the two Houses to the Prince of Wales, agreeable to their instructions. The Prince, if he is convinced that his Majesty is recovered, will of course decline the offer — and there the matter will rest.

The dispute between the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and the Parliament of that country, has been carried to such a pitch, that it cannot now be settled but by the recall of the one, or the dissolution of the other.

It was reported this morning, that the King's commands are sent over to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland for the immediate prorogation of the Parliament of that kingdom.

This morning some dispatches were received at Lord Sydney's Office from the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland.

The present alarming situation of Ireland, and the fatal consequence which may arise from it, are subjects of serious apprehension; but in the whole of this business no blame can, in fairness, be imputed to Mr Pitt. That great man had so entirely devoted his attention to the important business of the Regency of Great Britain, that he had not leisure enough to think of Ireland.

It is said that a day will very soon be appointed for a General Thanksgiving for the happy recovery of our beloved Sovereign.

The great things that require immediate dispatch, are the nomination of Sheriffs, the Mutiny, Land Tax and Malt Bills.

The usual period of celebrating the Queen's birth-day being over, no notice will be taken of it this year; but the King's birth-day, in June next, will be celebrated with unusual marks of festivity, should his Majesty, which God grant, continue in his present happy state of health.

Since his Majesty has obtained so promising a triumph over the more lamentable symptoms of his infirmity, he has taken such great delight in domestic retirement, that he has often expressed surprise that he should formerly have suffered political affairs to detach him so much from the sweet enjoyment of conjugal and filial endearments.

It is intended on Monday next to desist from sending the physicians report to St James's, his Majesty being thoroughly reinstated in his health.

The Minister, it is confidently reported, is to dissolve Parliament after the necessary annual bills shall have passed. In doing this, he means to try his strength in the country during the present moment, as he thinks he can never meet with so favourable a juncture.

The ensuing general election will be the most severe contest ever known. Whatever the Minister, by his situation, may be able to effect in the boroughs, it is certain that the majority of the counties will be against him in the new Parliament.

When Mr Fox was in Paris he was actually followed and huzzaced by the populace, in admiration of his uncommon abilities.

Mr Fox attended the House yesterday, and received the congratulations of all parties on the re-establishment of his health.

The deputies from the Irish Parliament dine this day with the Duke of Portland. The report in a morning paper, that they had dined with his Grace before, was equally false and frivolous.

It was observed by members below the bar of the House of Lords on Tuesday last, that when the Lord Chancellor was called upon by the Duke of Norfolk to explain the result of the late interviews which his Lordship had with the King, that he left the woollack with a joy that glistered in his eye before he spoke, and told the glad tidings of the king's recovery, with an emphasis that marked the effusions of his heart.

As a decided proof of his Majesty's present situation, the letter which he wrote to Mr Pitt on Tuesday, may be advanced with propriety. It was of a public nature, and written with all possible accuracy. Upon the receipt of this joy-inspiring epistle, Mr Pitt immediately set off to Kew, where he had the honour of a long conference with his Sovereign; and of paying his congratulatory respects to the Queen and Princesses, who, of course, appeared to possess those grateful and exquisite feelings incidental to the happy change.

Orders are sent down from the Secretary of State's Office, to every sea-port in England, not to suffer any ships or vessels to load with wheat or flour on any account whatever.

Yesterday the Commanders of the Pigot, Buffbridge, and Rose, East Indians, took their leave of the Court of Directors, preparatory to their sailing for Madras and Bengal.

We are informed, that when the ambassadors of Tippoo Sultan were taking leave at the Court of Versailles, they requested to know what mark of friendship from their master would be most satisfactory to the king of France, on which the king declared, "That the liberty of any English officer or soldiers, who might be still detained prisoners in the Sultan's dominions, and more especially of those who had been prisoners with Mr. Suffrein, would be the greatest test of regard for his Majesty." A declaration which reflects honour upon the throne from which it proceeded, and which exalts its author above the rank of kings! The Protector of Humanity!

It was not, we are informed, the intention of the Court of France to make this interesting request known, till it took a happy effect in India. The Indian ambassadors gave the first public intimation of the request. Mr. Suffrein wrote upon the same subject a very strong letter to Tippoo, and orders have been sent to the French Governors in India to use every possible influence at the Court of Tippoo to carry a point equally interesting to humanity, and to the policy of an enlightened and powerful nation.

It is supposed, that the Marquis de la Luzerne, the present ambassador of France in England, and who, in America, had the honour of rescuing Mr. Aigill from the cruel sentence to which he had been doomed, gave the French Ministry the first idea of the request which has been made to Tippoo.

The particulars of a negotiation so creditable to its authors, and which displays so happily the liberal spirit of the age, cannot and ought not to remain long unexplained.

Affairs become every day more and more serious in Flanders. By an authentic letter received on Wednesday from Hainault, we learn, that on the 2d instant, the Grand Pensionary M. Angulier, belonging to that state, was seized on and conducted in irons to the Castle of Antwerp, where he has been since kept on bread and water. The houses of two other Counsellors are surrounded with guards, and another Gentleman, holding one of the highest offices in the country, has been dismissed from his situation.

The advices lately received from Botany Bay, which announce the safe arrival of the fleet under Commodore Phillips, further mention, that it was intended to send home the Supply brig, with dispatches to government in November last, so that the may be expected in the course of next month, or early in the month of April.

Yesterday twenty-four prisoners were tried at the Old Bailey, two of whom were capitally convicted, eight were convicted of felonies, and fourteen were acquitted.

Yesterday was tried in the Court of King's Bench the several actions on information brought against Mess. Robinsons, (two brothers), and Brookes, the Magistrates of the liberty of the Tower Hamlets, who distinguished themselves by discharging those performers of the Royalty Theatre, who had been committed as rogues and vagabonds by Mr Justice

Strodes. They were all found guilty on the indictment; and Lord Kenyon, in a distinct and charge to the jury, reproached their conduct with warmth that reflected honour on his character as judge. His Lordship averred, that a doubt could not be entertained but that the two Robinsons and Brooks acted from motives of corruption, and through ignorance, although they endeavoured seek protection under the latter plea. These gentlemen will be brought up next term to receive judgment.

Yesterday, the following Thanksgiving, for Majesty's happy recovery, composed by Bishop Bernethy-Drummond, was offered up, in all Chapels under the Bishop's inspection, both in Edinburgh and Leith.

A PRAYER FOR THE KING.

"Almighty and everlasting God, whose way in the sea, whose paths are in the great waters, whose footsteps are not known, and who, by late heavy affliction with which thou didst visit excellent King, hast taught us, that the Princes are not more exempted from the most various calamities than the vilest of their subjects; desire to adore this awful instance of thy Providence, which we cannot fully comprehend, and to render our most humble and hearty thanks, for that, in midst of judgment, thou hast remembered mercy by greatly alleviating our Sovereign's distress, giving us hopes of his speedy and complete recovery. Blessed be thy holy name for this thy goodness to him, and may he, and all his people, sing thy praise. Go on, we pray thee, O gracious God, to what thou hast begun, and raise him up quickly, it be thy gracious will, to sit upon his Throne, health of body and soundness of mind, that he may walk before thee with a perfect heart, and govern his kingdoms with equity and truth."

"Pour down also thy blessings, we entreat thee on the Queen, the Prince of Wales, and all the Royal Family. Preserve them from dangers and distresses of every kind, and give them grace to prize their thankfulness for this great mercy, thy hoped-for recovery of the King, not only with thy lips, but in their lives."

"Finally, may both Prince and people unite the service of thee, their God, and make it at times their meat and their drink to do thy will. Guide us all by thy heavenly counsel, while we continue in this world, and at last receive us to thy kingdom and glory in that which is to come for the sake and sufferings of Jesus Christ, thy our Lord. Amen."

Yesterday, about ten o'clock in the morning, fire was discovered in a small house in Hornet Close, Cowgate, which at first had an alarming appearance; but by the timely assistance of the firemen and City Guard, it was happily got under, without being allowed to communicate to any of the adjoining buildings.
